Court Ordered Community Service

Court Ordered Community Service

Court-ordered service is assigned to individuals by the judicial system to engage them in positive service activities for the community where they live. It may be assigned in lieu of paying a fine or at a judge's discretion.

Not all nonprofits accept court-ordered service, however there are a few ways to find volunteer opportunities that fulfill this requirement. This Volunteer Guide published by the Volunteer Center of Cedar Valley contains a listing agencies that offer ongoing and special event volunteer events. This Volunteer Guide can be found at the Volunteer Center's office, as well as electronically on our publications page.

Be sure to allow time for finding your court-ordered service volunteer opportunities as most nonprofit agencies will have an application and screening process in place.
